It includes 37 watercolor illustrations, 3 full color maps, and a tip sheet on making art from your photos. There are fun techniques to make a little doodle of your name or your favorite image work as a butterfly or a flower, make dreamy patterns work for a quilt, or invert shapes to make patterns. This is a beautiful little book that allows kids to draw what they see all around them. It is published by the Children's Discovery Museum in San Francisco and is aimed at 2-7 year olds. There are ten mini landscapes and there is also a tip sheet called "Draw Me a Map". Caligrafia.pdf. To make the art you can either draw directly onto the pages or you can use a marker to trace around the shapes. These shapes are used to make a map of the world. They are big enough that you could learn the continents and country names, but not too big where they overwhelm. For this activity, I used well-dried colored pencils (though you could use markers for this). Split the children into two groups
