Now, I have a search form which fetches data from another table and shows the result of those documents in a table. My question is that where is the correct place to insert the status which is taken from the database table? I mean, should I use model or view for this? Thank you A: Never ever put the database in the view. That's asking for trouble. You should use a library like CI-Database library, to handle your database stuff. If you are working with active record, you should use Active Record, not model. =
